THERE seems to be in certain quarters at the present time a disposition to regard Japan's bly for Tamsui and Kelung, but it is said, acgrowth in power as inimical to British interests, and some writing of a mischievons. character, calculated to stir up bad blood has been indulged in on the subject. Laying aside all prejudice and passion, how does the case present i self? As every nation has to closely watch the doings of its neighbours and to take such measures as may be necessary to maintain its relative military efficiency, so England will now have to watch Japan and to strengthen her own fleet in Sastern waters to meet the new conditions and the alteration in the briance of power. Japan aims at being the dominant Power of the Far East; but that position is the man-of-war Laz-yuen. This ship turned at present held by Great Britain, who completely over with her whole crew within about intends to retain it. Japanese rivalry, both political and commercial, is therefore a the fleet got it into their heads that if any of slike to the Imperial Government and the factor that Great Britain has to reckon with But national rivalry does not necessarily mean national hatred and hostility, and This ship, it will be remembered, was condemned more than commercial rivalry between by Admiral Lang as being too crank to be seaindividuals necessarily means the destruction of private friendships. If at any time a misunderstanding should unfortunately arise between England and Japan England number considerably over 40,000 men. There must be prepared to hold her own, and in view of such a possibility it is necessary that she should take careful stock of Japan's growing strength; but in the meantime it is to the interest of England, as it is and ought to be her inclination, to cultivate and maintain friendly relations: with the rising Power whose conduct of the present war has genuine and widespread admiration.

We have heard the view expressed that England should prevent the acquisition of Formosa by Japan, on the ground that the all the steamers coming up from the south to possession of that island carries with it the command of the Formosa Channel and that a new the British ships, no doubt to make sure that no risk for British trade and shipping would thereby be created. The risk cannot be denied, but the war to meet it is, not to make an enemy of Japan, but to keen the British fleet in these waters up to such a standard as shall be sufficient to goard against the risk. We fail to see on what grounds of equity or reason England could interfere with Japanese designs on Formosa. England has had opportunities of taking the island before and has not thought fit prevent Japan taking posgreater danger than that which it is suggested should be guarded against. It would secure for us the undying hatred of Japan, and although that country standing alone would

On the other hand, if Japan is allowed to work her will in Formosa uninterfered with she will open up that rich island to trade, will develop its resources, and so contribute to 3 p.m., for this port. the commercial progress of the Far East and to the profits of British merchants and College, has returned from leave. No person, I am sure, for a single. moment doubted when the strike commenced that the Government must eventually prevail. but the question is what is to be the cost. If they are going to gain the day over the coolies by the process of exhaustion, the loss will be enormous and I do not think the Government would secrifice any dignity at all -far be it from me to recommend anything of the kind. but I do say if the suggestion made by the Committee is considered a bad one, an unwise one, let us clamby consider whether there is any other suggestion which will put this difficity at an end at an early date. The loss entailed among the gentlemen present, and probably to many gentlemen who are not here is unseen and undreamt of. This strike is felt enormously by the Chinese themselves. I am told-I have not gone, but if any of you have gone along the west end of the town you will have seen that there is very little business being done where ordinarily the 20,000 poolies out on strike would have been working to provide for the wants of 260,000 people. The business of the Chinese as well as the foreign community is practically at a stand-still. But assume ing it to be the case that the keepers earn only ten or twenty cents more than the ordinary coolie. the house, and who else, but the keeper himself, should be made primarily responsible? The question of wages does not enter into the matter at all; the keepers do not have to pay a cent for registration, and how can the enforcement of but this is a matter which must be arranged between the keeper and the landlord. The fact is there are certain individuals who are altogether unreasonably sympathetic with the keeper, and forget that in allowing this weak sentiment to enter into the question they jeopardise the law and good order of the colony.

OFFICIALS AND THEIR WIVES.

Referring to an order lately issued by the Madras Government to the effect that "the hight Honourable the Governor-in-Council desires that it may be understood by officers all grades in the public service that they will be held responsible for all note done by their wives, which if done by themselves, would constitute breaches of the rules for the conduct of public servants, ' the Times of India writes :- We do not know what the "true inwardnesss" of this strange order may be. The learned Judge who laid down as a selemn contribution to the law of husband and wife that " if a man keeps ! a menkey be must be responsible for its tricks' did not offer this wise rule as a mere obiter dietum; he applied it to a set of concrete facts. What has happened in Madras that Lord Wenlook should be constrained to warn the survents of Government that they, too, must look after their women folk or take the consequences? One gezes hard through and through this order in search after the chivalrousness, aye, and the good manners, which should be ! found in the public utterances even of a Government which thinks it has something that needs saying to the address of the ladies that dwell around its habitation. If people at a distance ask what ladies of the Madras Presideacy have been doing that their husbands should be thus bluntly told to look after them it is not importinent curiosity that prompts the question, but the blundering indecorousness of Lord Wenlock's Government. One almost wonders whether the author of this egregious order has stolen it from Roman records I the time when the Senate, moved to indignation by reports of the rapacity and evil living of the wives of the provincinal prefects, seriously debated whether these ladies should in future be allowed to accompany their husbands. It would not be surprising if nervous officers of Government should take this silly notification as a hint that the sooner they send their wives home the better.' Madras with the connivance of the Scoretary of State, had lately shown that it was not above Jedburgh justice-punishing a man first, and then leaving him to show wiy he should not be punished. And now, for novelty's sake we must suppose, a lest has been taken out of the book of Chinese jurisprudence, a pleasing feature of which is understood to be the punishment of one member of a family for the delinquencies of another. It is bad enough that this should be the righteous resolve of the Government of Madras; they would have done better to bave said nothing about it. A notification to all and sundry in the public service that they must see that their wives keep out of mischief is a silly insult. which even the Madras Government might have spared its servants.

NEW NOVEL BY HALL CAINE.

SECURED FOR PUBLICATION IN THE HONGKONG DAILY PRESS. "THE MAHDI," A STORY OF LOVE AND HEROISM.

T. HALL CAINE,

"The Scapegoat," "The Bondman," "The Deemster," "Shadow of a Crime," "A Son of Hagar," "The Manxman," Sto. . Sto. COMMENCED IN OUR COLUMNS SATURDAY, 90th March, 1895.

Mr. HALL CAINE, who is, without doubt, the ablest and most graphic Novelist of the age. has very closely studied the condition of the oppressed peoples of Europe and Northern FTHE Card published at the Daily Press Office Africa, and has introduced into his books scenes of intense power taken from actual events. In his latest work, "The Mahdi," Mr. HALL CATHE endeavours to bring home to the hearts of his readers something about that strange personage, the Mahdi, which has not previously C o been published. The Mahdi, in Mr. Caine a judgment, was a here and a patriot; a man possessing the wisdom almost of a Solomon with the military powers of a Saladin. In battle he charged. The price (cash only) of the locally knew no fear, and before howling and derinive printed correct card is 20 cents on paper, 3 mobs he prezerved a calm and dignified bearing. cents on card. He struggled to free his countrymen from the tyrants who held power, and he sought to give weman her rightful place as man's equal and

Such a personage might well form the subject of a book, and in "The Mahdi" Mr. HALL CAIME has utilized the chief facts of history and woven into them a love story of universal interest and
